Approximately 100 guests called during those hours to congratulate the couple.

Beautiful fall flowers decorated the entertainment rooms.

Tea was served from a table covered with a lace cloth and centered with a three-tiered wedding cake which was surmounted with a "golden wedding" miniature bride and groom and flanked with flat bowls containing arrangements of asters.

Mr. and Mrs. Steen are native Texans and have been in the Panhandle since 1912.

Mrs. Steen, the former Ora Kendall, was born in Sansaha, Texas in 1882. Mr. Steen was born in Hamilton in 1877. They were married on September 10, 1898. To this union were born four boys and five girls.

All the children were present for the celebration as were all but seven of the 36 grandchildren and all but two of ten great-grandchildren.

Buffaloes Whip Flagstaff 28-0 Circuit Opener

West Texas State Buffaloes took an easy victory in the first game of the season Saturday night, defeating Arizona State of Flagstaff in a Border Conference game, 28 to 0.

The Buffs showed nothing to the large number of scouts who worked the game. Coach Frank Kimbrough used his first string only in the first quarter. This team ran up 14 points, with Cross of Canadian going over for both touchdowns.

Starting the second quarter Kimbrough used only second and third string men. Two more touchdowns were pushed over in the final quarter.

Flagstaff was unable to threaten the Buffs.

The Buffs made 17 first downs as compared with 7 for the visitors.

No member of the Buffs team was injured, and time was taken out by the locals but once. The visitors called for frequent time out periods.

Nearly 6,000 persons saw the opening game. This was a surprise in view of the fact that college had not opened. It indicated the great interest which is being shown in the Buffalo squad this year.

Rain Wednesday a. m. Added .45 Moisture in City

The only rain for the past week fell in Canyon last Wednesday. This amounted to .45 of an inch.

The rain was heavier to the west and south of Canyon, but was considerably lighter in the north part of the county.

Mrs. Burhenn is survived by her husband, W. P. Burheen, and two brothers: E. W. Kleinschmidt of Chicago and J. W. Kleinschmidt of Canyon.

Rotary Governor on Official Visit to the Canyon Club

District Governor Ira Woods of Littlefield made his official visit to the Canyon Rotary Club Monday and Tuesday. He was accompanied by Rotary Ann Helen, and they visited in the home of A. B. and Grace Haynes, former Littlefield residents.

The Governor met with officers of the Canyon Rotary Club Monday night and made a check on conditions in the local club.

At the Rotary luncheon Tuesday, Governor Ira talked on local and world conditions. He described the local club as a 95% club, but the attendance record indicated only a 85% club. He hoped this condition could be improved.

Rotary does not have a monopoly on its objectives, which are heralded over the world. The objects are to improve men in the vocations. It seeks to make members try to understand the other fellow; his problems. The great need of the world is to understand how the other fellow "got that way."

There are three primary objectives of all citizens today: How to avoid World War III; how to avoid an economic collapse; how to avoid racial hatred and substitute friendship and understanding. If we are big enough to solve the third problems, we can solve the others.

Politics grow out of economics; and when men are hungry, they consider their politics of little importance.

No rank can dignify man; but man may dignify any rank.

The Governor stated that the United Nations charter is largely drawn from Rotary's ideals. People of America must make UN work. This is a time for greatness, courage, friendship and prospective. The world cannot turn back.

Visitors were: Dr. J. B. Roberts, Dr. R. C. Busteed, Bill Wilson, Riley Baker, all new members of the college faculty; Carlton Thompson of Dimmitt; S. W. Ramey of Lubbock; C. E. Lyndon Johnson Is Declared the Contest Winner

LYNDON JOHNSON

Lyndon Johnson was declared winner of the Senatorial nomination by the State Democratic convention in Fort Worth by a margin of 87 votes over Coke Stevenson.

Stevenson filed charges of fraud at Alice, but Johnson secured a court injunction against opening this box.

When a sub-committee counted the returns from the counties, Johnson was ahead 87 votes.

The entire executive committee voted to declare Johnson the winner. This order was approved by the convention Tuesday night.

A number of strong Stevenson counties walked out of the convention, charging steam-roller tactics. The Panhandle representatives on the State Executive Committee voted to certify Johnson.

Randall county was represented in the convention by W. J. Flesher and J. Evetts Haley. Flesher favored Johnson with three votes, while Haley supported Stevenson with three votes.

Stevenson states that he will take the matter of election fraud to the United States Senate when Johnson attempts to take his seat in January.

Tri-State Fair To Have Delegation In Canyon Sept. 21

A "prevue" of the Tri-State Fair will be given Canyon residents when a touring group of Amarillo business men visit here at 3:40 September 21.

The Fair's Reception and Goodwill Committee is making an area-wide swing through the Panhandle-Plains to personally invite Amarillo's neighbors to the annual exposition. Fair dates are October 4 to 9, inclusive.

The trip will be made in a specially-chartered bus, carrying 25 of the Fair boosters. Jay Taylor, Fair President, will head the delegation.

Sam Elkins, for years a wholesale druggist in Amarillo, is Chairman of the Reception and Goodwill Committee.

While in Canyon, a public demonstration will be held at some downtown point. A crew of six speakers will tell of the attractions of this year's Fair.

"It's the biggest and best ever," President Taylor, an Amarillo cattleman, proclaims. To back up his statement, here are some of the special attractions:

The famous ABC network radio program, "Ladies Be Seated," which will feature both afternoon and evening sessions during the Fair.

The All Girl Rodeo, first launched by the Fair last year and expanded for the 1948 program.

A group of Junior Chamber of Commerce boys will be on hand to boost ticket sales for "Ladies Be Seated" and "The All Girl Rodeo."

Professional clowns and fun-makers who will roam the Fair Grounds for the entire week.

A high-diving mule, who has more horsesense than the law allows.

The big midway attraction, the Bill Hames Carnival.

Crowning of the "1948 FFA Wheat King" and the "1948 4-H Wheat King" pushing the Fair's wheat department into big-time competition.

In addition to the special attractions, the regular departments also promise larger and expanded programs this year.

"We're going to better the old prewar Fair," Mr. Taylor asserted. "There will be plenty to see, plenty to do!"

Recent visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Sudderth were Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Hancock and son of Durant, Okla., and Mrs. W. G. Weaver and son of Frederick, Oklahoma.

Buffs Ready To Take on Tech Saturday Nite

The Buffaloes will travel to Lubbock Saturday to play Texas Tech in the first game of the season for the South Plains boys. The Buffs hold first place in the Border Conference with one win.

Tech had a large number of scouts here Saturday night to see the Buffs take an easy one from Flagstaff. The scouts were disappointed in not being able to see anything of importance from the Buffs. Coach Frank Kimbrough used his first string men only in the opening quarter, and did not show the visitors the real strength of his 1948 team.

The Lubbock game will be played in the new stadium which was given to the college by the past president Clifford Jones and his wife.

A large number of Panhandle friends of the Buffaloes will go to Lubbock to witness the game.

During the past 25 years the Buffs have won only three times from Texas Tech in a football game. Fans believe that the Buffs have a good chance to take this year's game, following the splendid showing of Saturday night.

The coaches of Tech and a large number of the players were here Saturday night, but took home little information on the strength of the Buffalo squad.

Palo Duro Plan Calls Improving All Facilities

Activities will increase at the Palo Duro Park according to plans which were made Thursday when the Advisory Committee met with Park Board officials.

J. F. Goode, assistant secretary and F. A. McNeil, engineer for the Texas State Parks Board, will be in the Palo Duro for a week. They came to supervise the erection of a windmill which is located west of the Gunter farm on the highway to the Park. The National Park Service drilled the well at this point, but withdrew from work at the Palo Duro before the windmill was erected. This mill will give needed additional water for the Park.

Mr. McNeil has visited the Palo Duro annually for the past four years, making valuable improvements on the property. This was Mr. Goode's first trip here. He spent a few years with the Canadian Record and knows the Panhandle country well. He was manager of the Bastrop State Park before accepting his present job as assistant secretary.

Members of the Advisory Board were informed that while here the two had visited every section of the Park and were amazed at the magnitude of the property.

They had been instructed to make estimates for the erection of a keeper's lodge near the entrance of the park.

While here measurements of all park employees were taken for uniforms which had been adopted by the State Parks Board and will be furnished to each employee. These uniforms will add to the appearance of the employees as citizens visit the park.

Chairman Guy Carlander of the Advisory Board reported that Boy Scout Executives wished to use the Palo Duro as a training project for Panhandle Eagle Scouts. Quarters for the Eagle Scouts would be arranged in the Park; the boys would be thoroughly trained upon the history of the Park; the structure of the canyon; trails; scenic spots, and other features of the Park. These boys would then offer their services free of charge to visitors in order to give a better understanding of the beauties of the Park.

Plans are being made to ask an appropriation from the next session of the legislature in order to pay off the $300,000 bonds against the land. This step is being taken for the purpose of inducing the State Highway Department to take over the roads in the Park and bring them up to highway standard. With better roads and a free gate the attendance will be greatly increased.

Frank Miller, concessionaire, states that attendance at the Palo Duro is increasing, but more people should be taking their meals at the lodge in order to improve the revenues from this part of the park. Civic clubs in Amarillo plan to hold their meetings there soon.

The State Parks Board hopes that it will be possible to secure the extension of a power line to the park during the next few months. This would add much to the facilities of the lodge and other projects on the park.

Building a tabernacle or meeting place for large gatherings will be one of the projects undertaken in the near future.

A number of the Advisory Committee was unable to attend the meeting. Those present were Mr. Carlander, Ted Lokey, Bill Sansing of Amarillo; Berl Elliston of Hereford; L. S. Johnston and Clyde Warwick of Canyon.

Tri-State Fair Boosters Will Visit Canyon to Invite Citizens to the Fair

JAY TAYLOR

SAM ELKINS

EDITORIAL COMMENTS

Approval By Voters of Four School Issues Needed

Citizens of the Canyon Independent School District will be called upon to vote on the four-fold measure which must be approved in order to carry out final consolidation of 16 school districts. The election on Sept. 25 is the natural outgrowth of the consolidation plans which were started months ago. Only one new project is presented which is not entirely new.

The one new feature is a $100,000 bond issue to replace the $75,000 bond issue which was approved by the voters of the district several months ago.

Assuming the bonds of the various districts which entered the consolidation is nothing new. Likewise the adoption of a uniform tax rate for the enlarged district is a mere step in the original plan for expanding the Canyon district in order to take in those districts which are sending their children to Canyon.

Cancelling the $75,000 bond issue, and voting a new issue of $100,000 is in keeping with the program for improving the school plant to suit the needs of the consolidated district.

The present school plant was built 25 years ago, long before Canyon had its present population. The need for more room has been apparent to all who have looked into the needs of the public schools. The trustees had two ways to go: Either ask for a large bond issue which would meet the needs of a new school plant; or to ask for a small bond issue in order to tide over the present emergency. Those who are fully aware of building costs today know that it would take at least $750,000 to build an adequate high school building, and when completed the plant would not be much larger than the present facilities. More than half of the bond issue thus would go into the high cost of production, with no permanent returns to the school plant. This would be foolish.

The school board bought adequate houses from the Amarillo Air Field, moved them to the campus, and have remodeled them to meet present needs. This has been done at a very small cost to the taxpayers, in comparison to the large cost of building a new plant.

It was impossible to make an accurate estimate on the cost of such improvements. But pretty good guesses were made and it was assumed that a $75,000 bond issue would be sufficient. The taxpayers approved this bond issue. In the meanwhile the boundaries of the district were changed, and fortunately the Attorney General held that he could not approve this $75,000 bond issue because of changes made in the boundaries following the election, and before the bonds could be approved by his office.

With the addition of 15 districts it is found that other improvements must be made, and these would take a little more money. The additional $25,000 to the $75,000 bond issue which was approved several months ago is not an extravagant sum of money under the circumstances.

Voters will keep in mind the fact that when they voted the $75,000 bond issue a few months ago there were 92 sections in the district; while today there are 570 sections in the district.

Personally we feel that the school trustees have been handling the affairs of the district in a most economical and efficient manner. The children of the district are entitled to the best schools that may be provided, and the $100,000 bond issue will buy a lot of facilities compared to the big bond issue which has been proposed by so many.

At any rate, the school trustees went ahead with the original improvement program due to the fact that the people approved the $75,000 bond issue. The trustees are now confronted with the unhappy situation of having spent $75,000 which it will not receive because of the change of school boundaries.

The taxpayers must pay the bill one way or another, and the bond issue is the only logical method to meet the bill.

September 17 is the deadline for political parties to get names on the November election ballots. It is indicated that the Democrats, Republicans, Dixicrats, Wallacecrats, Socialists and Independents will be represented. What an array for the voters in November! Fortunately the voters of Texas will not be forced to wade through a long list of electors this fall. We will vote on the names of President and Vice President.

We hear rumblings that Pappy O'Daniel will run for re-election on the Republican ticket. That is another brainstorm. If Pappy re-enters politics it will be to run for Governor in 1950. And we are no political prophet, especially of the antics of Pappy.

We are sure that all of the 54 visiting newspaper men and women who spent the day with Van Stewart at Perryton were highly pleased that they took off time to make the trip. The Newsman is ashamed of the fact that in 38 years spent in Canyon this was the first time we have ever visited in Perryton. But it will not be our last trip. Another sectional meeting will be held with Deck Wells at Wellington in November. This meeting should be largely attended. The third sectional meeting will be in Canyon in January. We hope that Forrest Weimhold, president of the Panhandle Press Association, will invite newspaper men and women to visit with him in Levelland the first of March. The 40th Annual Convention of the Panhandle Press Association will be held in Amarillo on April 8-9.

On election day we made the observation that if Coke Stevenson won that it would be in spite of a very poorly organized campaign, and entirely inefficient office management in his state headquarters. At the same time we complimented the effective campaign made by Lyndon Johnson. Coke worked hard during the campaign, and talked with a lot of people. But this was not enough in a big state like Texas. There must be an effective state organization, on its toes every minute. Those in charge of Coke's campaign simly took it for granted that he could not be defeated in light of his long and efficient record of service to the state. But the wisest are often fooled when the people speak.

Comments are being made about debris being spread along the highway between Canyon and Amarillo. The highway mantenance say that they are trying to keep the highway cleared of beer cans, whiskey bottles, milk bottles and old newspapers. But it is a tough job. The picnic units were built for the convenience of the travelling public, but they are being badly abused by the thoughtless public. Public property is no longer held sacred by the public. It is placed there for the right of abuse, according to a large part of those who use these public places. This should not be the case, but nevertheless it is true. It will be a great day for America when public property is treated like private property.

That man Harold Stassen knows how to handle a crowd—or was he speaking to a stacked crowd? Stassen followed President Truman in Detroit, the labor capitol of America. He defended the Taft-Hartley law, after the President had so soundly denounced this law. Stassen received great applause. Of course these radio audiences may be stacked; or at least a few loud mouthed friends may be near the mike. At least it sounded as if the audience was equally as enthusiastic over Stassen as they were for the President. We shall soon hear from Governor Dewey. It seems that Stassen is going to lead in the GOP bid, while Dewey will follow as a clean-up batter of the team. We still wonder if GOP didn't make a serious blunder in ditching Stassen for Dewey. November will tell.

GOP leaders in the Panhandle have been shelling the woods trying ot get a candidate out against Congressman Eugene Worley. The Republicans remember the good vote which Frank O'Brien received two years ago as a protest vote against Worley. We are convinced that the same conditions do not exist today as in 1946. However, political predictions are very, very dangerous. At least Eugene is not losing any sleep about his political adversaries in the Republican camp. Amarillo again threatens to have out a candidate in 1950, but this is a long way off.

We have been messing with elections for a long time. Under the strict terms of the Terrell election law, it is tough to hold a strictly legal election. But after all, what are mere technicalities? The spirit of the voter; his qualifications as an intelligent citizen; his honesty in being willing to exercise his obligations of citizenship are more important than the mere letter of the antiquated election law. The legislature should remodel the election laws of Texas and cut out a lot of its foolish provisions; among them the second primary.

Whether the Russians will carry their demands to the point of war is something that no one knows. It is pretty evident that Stalin and his small bunch of advisers are willing to carry their demands to the breaking point. Stalin has been a hard trader, and America has been traded out of our shirt by the free-hearted Roosevelt and Truman. As usual the taxpayers will be called upon to foot the bill.

Wonder how they do it? The people like to be fooled—by the Longs and the Talmages. Remember the Fergusons?

America Means Freedom to All Men ---- Hoover

Herbert Hoover, in a talk made in the little town of West Branch, Iowa, where he was born, gave one of the finest expressions ever made of what this country stands for.

"America means far more than a continent bounded by two oceans," he said. "It is more than pride of military power, glory in war, or in victory. It means more than the vast expanse of farms, of great factories or mines, magnificent cities, or millions of automobiles and radios. It is more than the traditions of the great tide westward from Europe which pioneered the conquest of a continent. It is more than our literature, our music, our poetry. . . .

"The meaning of our word 'America' flows from one pure spring. The soul of our America is in its freedom of mind and spirit in man. Here alone are the open windows through which pours the sunlight of the human spirit. Here alone is human dignity not a dream, but an accomplishment."

Those who attempt to interpret the greatness of this country in purely material terms are blind to the basic truths. Other nations possess resources which are comparable to ours. We have no monopoly on intelligence, on knowledge, on energy, on the potential ability to create and build. But here, alone of the great powers of the modern world, we have maintained the right of the individual to do whatever he pleases within the framework of the law. We have said, in effect, that the man controls the state—and the state does not control the man.

This has been one of the greatest achievements in the whole vast sweep of recorded history. Yet we must never forget that freedom must always be guarded and defended if it is to live. Elsewhere in his address, speaking of his boyhood, Mr. Hoover said, "In those primitive days, social security was had from the cellar, not from the Federal government." The most dangerous tendency of our times lies in our ever-increasing dependence on government. When we buy a dubious "security" at the price of loss of personal liberty, we are following the same old downhill path that has led to oppression and dictatorship thruout the world.

The real American values are spiritual. All our other values, like all wealth and power, stems from them alone. They have sustained us in every period of adversity, ranging from disastrous depressions to terrible wars. And in those values, based as they are upon the dignity and rights of man, we can find the real meaning of America.

I once tutored a Yale Sheffield junior who admitted he had never read but one book beyond those required. When I asked him what book it was, he said he could not remember its name or its author but explained "it was a red book."—Charles Upson Clark, North Hatley, Quebec.

News In Canyon 25 Years Ago

(Taken from the files of the Randall County News of September 13, 1923)

The News announced a great scarcity of homes in Canyon. At least 500 persons have tried to move to Canyon during the past few weeks but could not come because of the housing shortage.

Skypala Bros. near Umbarger reported making an oats crop which yielded 76 bushels to the acre. Clem Friemel and Joe Bedenk both averaged 40% bushels.

S. B. McClure was elected manager of the Randall County Fair which will open on Sept. 20.

Miss Edith Harrison, daughter of Mayor and Mrs. C. N. Harrison, was elected Princess of the Tri-State Fair which opens soon in Amarillo.

George B. Terrell says he will run for governor if some one will pay the expense of the campaign. He is now Commissioner of Agriculture.

The Anglo-American theory of atomic warfare is as outmoded as the Nazi "blitzkrieg" theory. Under the debris of the German Fascist war machine was buried the theory of the blitzkrieg, as well as the theory of wars with small armies.—Maj. A. A. Zubkov, Red Army.

We devoutly wish that we could stand guileless and with Christian spirit and contemplate the good years before us.—Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall.

In the mountainous region of eastern Pennsylvania my husband noticed a prosperous, though simple, farm and inquired if it was for sale, explaining to the elderly owner that he wasn't interested in farming but wanted it for vacationing and hunting.

"I'm planning to sell out," replied the farmer. "The wife and I have worked 40 years to make this a good farm where a family could make a decent livin'. This is my contribution to the future of our country so we couldn't sell it to you."

"Why not?" asked my husband.

"Don't expect you'll understand. But sellin' this farm to you who don't aim to farm it—no matter what you'd pay me for it—would be like sellin' a herd of young pure-bred cattle to the butcher."—Katherine Benion, Democracy in Action.

I never answer political questions. I have followed that policy unswervingly ever since my husband first entered political life.—Mrs. Thomas E. Dewey.

U. S. diplomats in Yugoslavia differ over the future of Marshal Tito. One faction believes he will be overthrown, but another faction thinks he will retain power. These conflicting views make U. S. policy toward Yugoslavia more difficult to devise.

Common Man Has No Chance Under Dictator

We usually associate free enterprise with manufacturing industry—with the plants where an infinity of products and services are produced.

Yet one of the finest examples of free enterprise is found in the business with which the average person comes in contact most often—retailing.

A good way to see this is to take an imaginary trip through typical stores in a country where free enterprise has been destroyed and the government runs everything. If you are a person of importance and in favor with the powers that be—such as a top government official, a marshal, or a great ballerina—you will be allowed to trade at a handful of modern stores which offer luxury goods at a very high price.

However, if you are one of the masses, you will only be permitted to enter a dreary store which stocks the barest necessities and is often short of those. You will be able to buy just enough to keep yourself and your family alive on a subsistence level. If you need a pair of shoes or a suit, you will get goods of low quality—at a cost of most of your wages for a month or two.

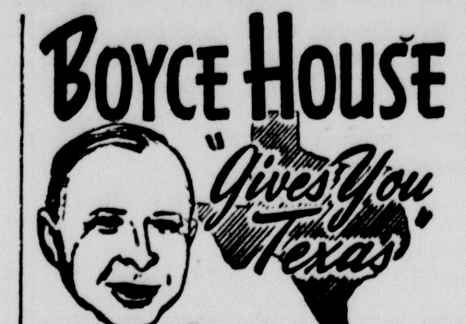
In this country, by contrast, we have the "curse of competition." We have chain stores and independent stores. Anyone can buy anywhere he wants—and he can choose from a stock of goods that would make Russians think they were dreaming the wildest dreams.

The point is simple. Only free enterprise produces abundance for all.

Herbert Brownell, Governor Dewey's campaign manager, is credited with healing the breach that developed among Pennsylvania Republicans before the Convention. Mr. Brownell brought Gov. James H. Duff and Senator Edward Martin, leaders of opposing factions, together in Washington recently and is said to have effected a reconcilliation.

Democratic hopes of controlling the Senate are increasing. Democrats need to pick up only four Senate seats and already are counting on gains in Wyoming, Kentucky and West Virginia. They see best chances for the fourth seat in Minnesota or Oklahoma.

The Washington Monument has been upright for 100 years. Officeholders please copy.



More memories of a columnist's sojourn in California for a few months, nine years ago:

Of amusements, there is no dearth in Hollywood—(isn't that sentence a dilly, by the way?) At least, there was plenty to see when I was out there—a Pacific Conference football game every Saturday afternoon, a "pro" grid game Sunday afternoon, two athletic clubs, each of which presented one card of boxing and another of wrestling each week, and two theaters that showed a combination of top-notch motion pictures and flesh-and-blood performers. Think of seeing a feature picture and also seeing, in person, Frances Langford, Kenny Baker and Ken Murray, all for only 50 cents!

They were always introducing notables at the ringside at the fights—such as Rochester, who was managing a heavyweight, and the old-time Olympic champion, the Indian, Jim Thorpe.

Then there were big road shows, such as "The Man Who Came to Dinner." The principal character was supposed to have been based on Alex Woolcott and the famous critic and writer played the role himself. But the night I went, he was sick and they had to make a substitution. Some of the people didn't stay but got their money back at the box office. I remained however and the substitute was wonderful. He made a better Woolcott than Woolcott did. I didn't know until I read the paper the next morning who I had seen. He was Kaufman, the man who wrote the show.

Life has embarrasing moments. Here is one of many I've encountered:

Back in the early 1920's, a reunion of Texas Rangers was held in Ranger. They were men who had served on the frontier, 10 years after the Civil War. I was the rather young editor of the Times and I invited half a dozen of them to go into the drug store and have something to drink. After the sodas had been served, I handed the young lady attendant a dollar bill but she pushed it back with the remark, as she looked right at me:

"We're not charging you old Confederates anything."

Attorney General Makes Comments on Election Laws

The Texas election laws need restudy and overhauling from stem to stern, Attorney General Price Daniel said in Austin today after concluding that the present statutes give him no authority to make investigations or prosecutions of alleged election irregularities.

During the past ten days Daniel and his assistants have been digging into the laws and court decisions to see if the State's chief legal officer has the power to investigate charges and counter-charges made by friends of both Senatorial candidates Lyndon Johnson and Coke Stevenson after the August 28 run-off primary.

"Our conclusion is that the Legislature has vested exclusive authority in the county and district attorneys to investigate and prosecute alleged election law frauds the same as other criminal offenses. The present laws leave the Attorney General without authority to act," Daniel said.

"This has been the consistent conclusion of previous attorneys general," Daniel added, "but on account of the serious state-wide importance of the recent complaints from both sides we made a complete restudy of the question to be sure that we were doing everything in our power to help the people of Texas know if the various charges and suspicions are true or false and to prosecute any who may be guilty."

"In my opinion, future legislation should leave such prosecution for offenses committed in a single county or district as a primary duty of the local county or district attorney, but add a provision that the Attorney General shall step in if the local officials fail or refuse to do their duty. For offenses alleged on a state-wide scale, it seems to me the Attorney General should be given authority to investigate and prosecute," the Attorney General said.

But this is only one of the many changes which have been needed for a long time in our Texas election laws," Daniel said. "The majority of the present laws were great improvements over their predecessors when enacted in 1905-1919, but they now need restudy and overhauling from stem to stern."

The Attorney General says he believes two of the most needed changes are to rewrite and put some teeth into the campaign expenditures law, and to withhold announcement of election returns by precincts and counties until all the votes have been officially counted, duly sworn to and filed with the proper local officials.

Daniel's last proposal would eliminate all unofficial returns and reports. Election officials would be required to count, swear to, seal their returns and deliver their boxes to the county clerk within 48 hours (by Monday night after a Saturday election) and not divulge the count on any race until after the official returns are opened and canvassed in public the following morning.

Under this plan no one would know how any candidate stood until after the returns from every box had been certified and delivered. It would be too late then for a precinct to "find" or be suspected of "finding" additional votes needed by any candidate.

"This proposal infers no particular suspicion against either candidate nor any particular occurrence growing out of the recent contest. It is to prevent what both candidates suspected and charged as unfair and unlawful. Both Senate candidates at various times alleged unlawful vote "finding" and being "counted out" after the unofficial returns came in. There is no way now to distinguish readily between honest corrections and dishonest changes, if any," Daniel said. "The unwarranted suspicion and doubts cannot easily be separated from the justified complaints. In my opinion the only way to restore faith and respect to this particular phase of our election procedure is to eliminate completely the announcement of returns until all have been officially filed and publicly opened in each county."

Economists say it will be easy to spot politicians who are serious about curbing inflation. These must be part of their program: (1) Cut spending by the biggest spender of all, the Government; (2) tighten up on housing credit instead of pumping out more Federal subsidies; (3) modify farm price support and let food prices come down; (4) apply Federal Reserve Board powers to reduce bank loans.

One generation after an atomic bomb falls on a typical American city, 1,500 male children will sicken and die for every 10,000 population. —Dr. Albert Bellamy, dean of life sciences, University of California.

Week For Fire Prevention Set For October 3-9

This year, Fire Prevention Week will be observed from October 3 to 9. And never in our history has there been a time when the week was more important.

Our fire waste is still running at an all-time high. During the first seven months of this year alone the destruction amounted to more than $437,000,000—far exceeding the total for the entire year of 1944. And we cannot blame this on higher prices and values. They are a factor, of ccurse, but the fact remains that we are having more fires, and that the average fire is causing more destruction.

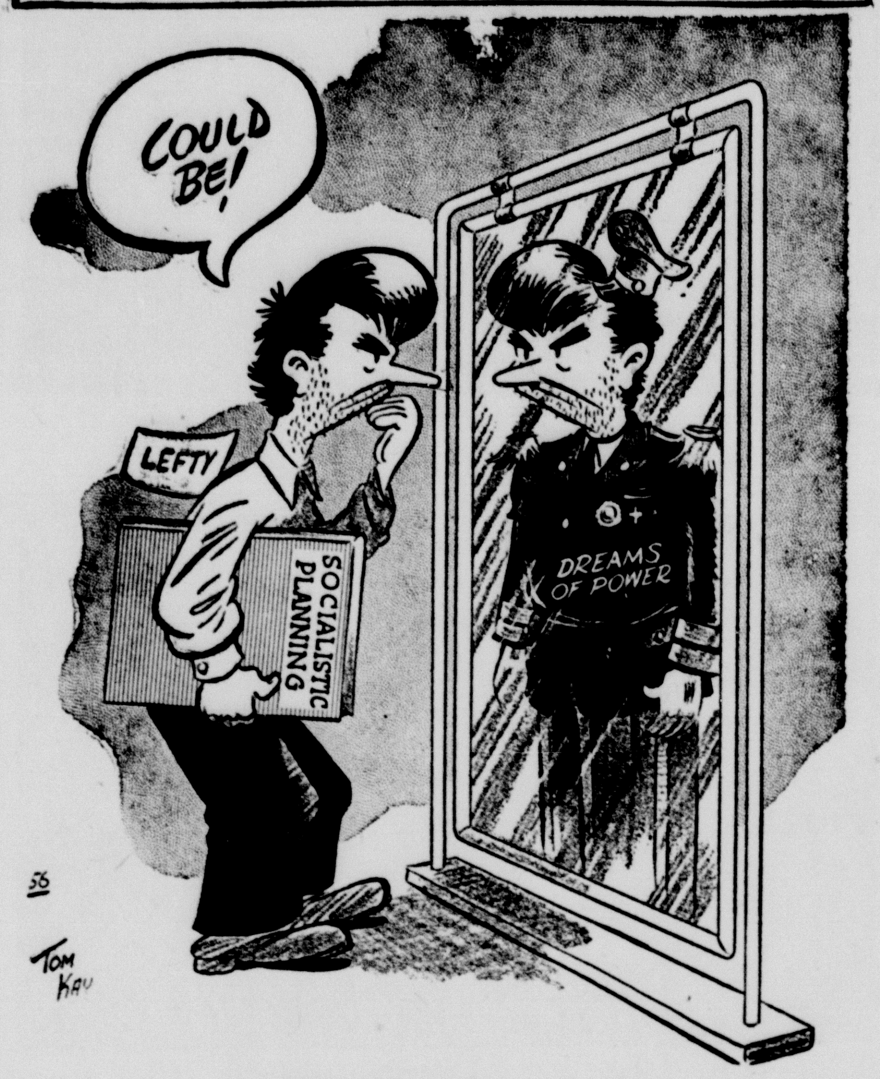
Fire prevention is especially important on farms and in rural areas, which usually lack first-class fire fighting facilities. According to the National Board of Fire Underwriters, farm fires take 3,500 lives and do $100,000,000 worth of damage annually. And nearly one-third of those fires could be prevented by the installation of lightning rods of the proper type on buildings. Other major causes of farm fires are improper handling of gasoline, and chimneys and flues which are dirty or in bad condition. Simple care and adequate maintenance would eliminate the vast majority of these dangers.

The toll of death and destruction by fire can and must be checked. Fire Prevention Week will witness a peak of activity by the forces whose job is to prevent fire and to educate the people in fire safety. If the country will listen and learn, this needless waste can be reduced now.

Farm organization leaders are expressing fear that consumer resentment against the high cost of living may cause farmers to lose most of the laws enacted in the last 15 years to protect their prices and incomes. They are preparing a publicity campaign to show that the food prices bothering consumers most are far above the Government support levels and are not caused by the support measures.

Clifford Hope, Representative from Kansas, will get most of the blame if present farm support prices, coupled with bumper crops, produce a major farm issue next year. Mr. Hope is largely responsible for continuing support prices at current levels. Even the farm organizations were urging lower support prices.

THE AMERICAN WAY



The Little Fuhrer

Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan is worried about political implications of the cotton crop. Signs are that the crop will be so large that he ought to put on marketing controls as a condition for price supports. But marketing controls, which mean that cotton farmers can sell only a fixed percentage of their crop, are not at all popular with growers.

Senator Ives (Rep.), of New York, is telling close friends that he may consent to run for Governor of the Empire State two years hence. Lieut. Gov. Joseph R. Handley, who will finish Governor Dewey's term if the latter is elected President, is not expected to be a candidate.

President Truman was given a political problem as well as a strike problem when New York truck drivers stopped work. He has been trying to persuade Dan Tobin, president of the Teamsters Union, to return to the Democratic fold, and he was advised that an injunction against New York truck drivers would be a poor way of persuading the union leader.

Thomas B. McCabe, Federal Reserve Board Chairman, is losing hope that the Board can refrain from using FRB's new power to raise bank reserve requirements. With bank loans in a rising trend, he is about convinced that reserves must be increased. But he still will be cautious.

Economic Fall Not Expected If Inflation Stops

Going by the statistics alone, the American economy was never in a healthier condition. We have practically achieved the goal of full employment, the national income is still running at a record peacetime level, with few exceptions the demand for goods is extremely strong, industry is showing excellent profits, and labor is carrying home more cash than it ever did before.

Yet there is a strong undercurrent of uncertainty—of fear that this pleasant condition in which almost everyone is at least relatively prosperous may not be here for an indefinite stay. That doesn't mean that the economists expect a recession, a depression or any other economic upset to put in an appearance next winter or spring or at any other given date. Certainly, the prospects for the next two years or so all point to a continuance of good times. But the possibility of a collapse in the not-so-distant future is a subject of grim concern in many minds.

This point of view is not confined to the men who run American enterprise, and the economists who do the long range forecasting. It is evident that some of the top labor leaders have been thinking in similar terms. And there is a good reason for that. The immediate goal of any labor group is usually to get higher wages, job security, and other such concessions. But an intelligent leader must think ahead of this. He must concern himself with the long-time factors which make either for sustained employment, or for widespread unemployment with all the chaos that involves.

Some time ago, William Green suggested that there be a meeting of the top people in industry, agriculture and labor, with a view to ironing out differences and, if possible, reducing prices. Mr. Green's proposal was couched in general terms, and it is unlikely that any such conference will occur at this time. But the fact that it was suggested is indicative of the problems of the day. The elements which make up the economy have been pulling at cross purposes. There is widespread distrust and dislike. The attitude of "I'll get mine and to hell with the rest of you" has been pretty prevalent in domestic affairs. Sooner or later, if anything close to real economic stability is to be attained, this will have to be changed.

No one can deny that it would be a boon to the entire nation if we could maintain high wages, short work weeks and all the rest of it and at the same time reduce prices. But no one has as yet found a formula for doing it. In the great mass industries—the ones which determine the course of the economy—wages have been the largest factor in deciding the price for which goods can be sold. An interesting example is automobiles. In 1929 the average car sold for $800. It now sells for $2,000. In 1929 the typical auto worker received a little more than $32 for around 47 hours work. Today he gets $64 for a 40 hour week. As Business Week puts it, "The ratio of hourly pay rates to finished car prices is almost constant, then and today.

In some instances, industrial profits may be too high, and should be reduced in order to make possible lower prices for goods. But these instances are scattered—today's tremendous expenses for plant expansion and improvement alone make it necessary for the average industry to maintain a high earning rate if it is to keep in the swim. It is probable that the best hope for achieving an economy in which wages can be kept high in relation to prices is through greater productivity per man hour. That has been accomplished in one of two ways in the past—technological advances, where new or improved machines do more of the work, or greater skill and application by the worker himself. The last is simply another way of saying "A full day's work for a full day's pay." It is undoubtedly true that in some fields the unions themselves have forced a scandalous decline in worker productivity. The prime example is the building trades. Policy varies from region to region and even from city to city, but in many places the number of brick or shingles or siding or anything else a worker is permitted to place in a day is ridiculously low.

There is still another phase of the price problem that deserves more notice than it has been given. Deflation can be as bad as inflation. A really sharp drop in prices—back to the 1939 figure, for example—might bring on a depression sooner than anything else. The American government is geared to a high-price and high-wage economy which will bring in sufficient tax revenue to meet its enormous commitments. This will be true regardless of the outcome of the elections next November. In certain lines, such as basic agricultural produce, the government is pledged to price-support and no one can imagine any administration abandoning that. The enormous resources of the government would be marshalled at once if anything resembling a price collapse threatened.

The best hope, therefore, is that inflation can be checked, that some moderate price cuts may occur, and that an equitable working agreement between labor, industry and agriculture can be reached. But it won't happen overnight, and the prospect now is that prices will go up some more, and that new wage demands will result.

OUR DEMOCRACY——by Mat

PRESCRIPTION FOR HAPPINESS

TRADITIONALLY, HERE IN AMERICA, WE HAVE RECOGNIZED FREEDOM OF INDIVIDUAL CHOICE AS A PREREQUISITE FOR HAPPINESS — FOR HAPPINESS CAN MEAN DIFFERENT THINGS TO DIFFERENT PEOPLE.

TRADITIONALLY, TOO, WE HAVE RECOGNIZED THAT, ALONG WITH FREEDOM OF CHOICE GOES MORAL AND SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY... HAPPINESS HAS TO BE EARNED. AND BY REWARDING ACHIEVEMENT, BY SAFEGUARDING THE RIGHT OF THE INDIVIDUAL TO ADVANCE IN THE FIELD OF HIS OWN SELECTION, BY GIVING HIM OPPORTUNITY TO PROVIDE FOR HIS FAMILY'S CURRENT NEEDS AND FUTURE SECURITY, WE HAVE ESTABLISHED FAVORABLE CONDITIONS FOR THE PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS IN OUR DEMOCRACY.

FACT FABLE

Once upon a time a boy named Bob left his home town for the city to go to college. Soon he became very lonesome for his hometown sweetheart, whom he planned to marry as soon as possible. So he wrote her a long love letter every day, and told her "my daily letter will have to take my place."

About a year later the girl married the postman.

Better Light means Better Sight

Protection from traffic hazards is important, but just as important today is protection from eyestrain due to improper lighting.

Growing children need more care than older folks when it comes to making sure that the light is right. Their eyes, still developing, need every bit of care and attention they can receive.

Make sure, wherever children work or play, that the light is right. Low cost electricity makes it easy — and economical too — to provide GOOD lighting — always.

Price Control Is a Deceptive and Evasive Thing

Every argument in favor of price control falls flat when it comes up against this fact: You can't make a man produce at a loss, or sell goods for less than it costs him to buy and handle them.

Most price control schemes call for rolling all prices back to the level of some specific period—last year, for instance. Yet, since that time, we have had another round of wage increases. We have had continuance of gigantic spending by the government, which is one of the surest of all ways to keep inflation going. We have had a tax reduction, which means that there is more money available to compete for goods.

If price control were to go into effect tomorrow, what would happen? The manufacturers of most commodities make a profit of around six per cent—so if they earned nothing at all the cut in price be too small to be noticed. The retailers from whom you buy earn, as profit, two to five cents out of each dollar you spend with them. All the rest goes for stock, payrolls, rent, taxes, and so on. So, if they worked for the love of the game alone, your budget would be cut very little. The worker certainly isn't going to take a pay cut in order to bring prices down. As a consequence, we would have fewer goods and goods of poorer quality—and more and more items would be siphoned off into the black market where the price charged is every penny the buyer will cough up.

In an economy where thousands upon thousands of manufacturers and retailers are competing for the public's business no one can peg prices. They find their own level. And that level, whether it be high or low, is determined by the times.

My fellow-candidate for President, Henry Wallace, has—perhaps unwittingly—become a tool of the Communists in the U. S.—Dr. Claude A. Watson, Prohibition Party candidate for President.

Rare Treat

Since the Leipzig Fair, once known as "Germany's Showcase," reopened in 1946 under Russian sponsorship, visitors could look but not buy. This year the third postwar version offered the same thing. But here visitors crowd around the most popular booth, an ice cream and hot dog stand, where they cannot only look but also buy. The two items were unrationed during fair week.

Public Unaware of Increased Number Diphtheria in Texas

An interesting sidelight on public health in Texas was revealed in the morbidity report of the Texas State Department of Health for the week ending August 28th, which showed a total of 2 cases of smallpox for this year, while in the same period there were 588 cases of diphtheria.

Commenting on these comparative figures, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer stated that diphtheria is as readily controlled by immunization as is smallpox, but that apparently the public has failed to recognize this fact, or to act upon it.

"Smallpox, which is highly contagious, is no longer considered a major health problem in Texas," Dr. Cox said, "and this is due to widespread vaccination against the disease. Diphtheria, equally contagious, can also be reduced to the point where a single case is a rarity, but only when parents awake to the fact that every child should be immunized in infancy. The baby's doctor will recommend when this should be done, and if all children were given this protection, there would be none susceptible to contract this killing disease.

Ordinarily the immunity provided by diphtheria toxoid lasts a child until he is of school age, however a Schick test should be given before the child enters school. If needed, an additional shot of toxoid should be administered.

"When all children are routinely immunized against this dreaded disease, it can be virtually eliminated as the health hazard that it now is, to the boys and girls of Texas," Dr. Cox declared.

Work on a number of Western reclamation projects is expected to stop some weeks before election because the Interior Department will run out of funds. Democrats plan to make political capital out of the stoppages by blaming the Republican Party for not appropriating enough money.

Albania, tiny country on the Adriatic, is isolated by the Yugoslav-Russian dispute. Yugoslavia now is as hostile to Albania as to Italy and Greece. Recent Albanian appeals to Russia for aid brought no commercial equipment, no consumer goods—only two shiploads of second-rate arms.

Political note: Some GOP leaders are more concerned with contests for the Senate than with the presidential race. The reason is that the Democrats need to gain only four seats to control the Senate, and they have some excellent candidates in the running in states where the vote may be extremely close.

The polls opened at 6 a. m. in St. Louis, but only at 7 in the country. What's all this talk about farmers getting up at the crack of dawn?

14 Million Are Prisoners of Stalin in Russia

What do the masses of the Russian people—the 200,000,000 individuals who make up Stalin's enormous reservoir of manpower—think of the policies of the Kremlin? Are they as bitterly opposed to the West and all its work as the controlled Soviet press and radio indicate? Do they believe that communism is the hope of the world and that capitalism must be destroyed by one means or another?

These and kindred questions have long occupied the minds of those concerned with the U. S.-U. S. S. R. problem. The difficulties that lie in the way of answering them conclusively are obvious—few Americans have had extensive touch with rank-and-file Russians, and the Kremlin has made it steadily more difficult for the Americans who live in Russia to know the people. One of the most interesting of the answers recently appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, in the form of an article called "In Defense of the Russian People." It was written by Alexander Barmine, who was once a Soviet general and diplomat, but came to this country in disillusionment before the war. During the war, he entered our army as a private and later served with the OSS.

Mr. Barmine's title pretty well explains his thesis. He believes that we make a terrible mistake when we consider the Russian masses and the Russian leaders to be tarred with the same brush. This attitude, he says, "rejects the Russian people as potential allies of the democratic world in its crucial struggle with the Soviet totalitarian empire." These people, he goes on, "are not the authors, but the principal victims, of the Kremlin crimes."

If Mr. Barmine is correct, the Russian masses have been ruthlessly and efficiently enslaved by their masters. Stalin, according to him, has 14,000,000 of his countrymen in concentration camps. He has a secret police force of 2,000,000 members, with almost unlimited power to imprison and execute, who keep the nation in line. So, he says, "when we judge the conduct of the individual Russian, we must keep in mind the shadow of the secret police behind him."

It is certainly true, as Mr. Barmine points out, that the Russian people have for centuries been engaged in bloody struggles for human rights. The final overthrow of the monarchy was followed by a short-lived democratic state which the organized Bolsheviks in turn destroyed. They then established themselves through a planned reign of terror in which millions died, were incarcerated, or condemned to forced labor.

One of Mr. Barmine's most startling statements is that the Allies, during the last war, actually helped to keep the Russian people in chains. His story is that, as the war approached its end, desertions from the Russian army were reaching disastrous proportions from the Kremlin's viewpoint, and that millions of Soviet citizens, prisoners of war and others, were refusing to go home. At Yalta, he says, Stalin successfully persuaded Roosevelt and Churchill to guarantee the return of every Soviet citizen in Europe who had left the U. S. S. R. after 1927 for any reason. This agreement was, apparently, kept to the letter. Mr. Barmine thinks that most of those returned were executed and their families sent to concentration camps. He says that many killed themselves rather than face repatriation. He terms the agreement "a most gigantic violation of the sacred principles of political asylum."

What his thesis adds up to, then, is that "the Kremlin regime is a giant with feet of clay. All its arrogance and hysterical name-calling are the result of fear and insecurity." The Russian people, in his view, are held in bitter and unwilling subjugation by the small proportion of the population which constitutes the Communist party, and by the infinitely small percentage which is trusted with real authority by the Politburo. That leads him to his main point, which is: "Current American policy is on the wrong track as long as it refuses to draw a line between the totalitarian regime and the Russian people. If this policy of arousing indiscriminate anti-Russian feeling persists, Stalin may well succeed in selling this war to the Russian people as a war of self defense. . . . We can have hundreds of millions of people on the totalitarian side of the Iron Curtain as our allies if we do not take from them the hope of liberation."

The viewpoint expressed by Mr. Barmine is held by many others—even as it is considered wrong and wishful by others still. In any event, it seems certain that the brutalities of the Kremlin, both within and without its established borders, must have generated enormous hatreds. This would in part account for Russia's growing isolationism—and for the Kremlin's determination that the Russian people shall not be allowed any contact with or knowledge of the "corrupt" democracies. In the long run, the spirit of internal revolt may be a trump card in the grim game that is now in progress between the West and the East.

Just How Sure-Footed Is a Donkey?

Corn Prices and Meat Prices in Same Bracket

In various sections of the country, housewives have organized to boycott meat. The general idea is to refuse to buy until the butcher will sell choice cuts for 60 cents a pound or some other arbitrary figure.

The Los Angeles Times, in mid-August, ran one of the best editorials yet to appear on this. It said, "The housewives' boycott has logic—for if meat demand goes down appreciably prices ought to go down—but this is where the second set of facts comes for consideration. Meat is for the most part converted corn. Ergo, if corn is dear, meat must be expensive. . . . The government . . . has pumped billions into price support for every major crop, from wheat, through corn, to potatoes. Farm prices would have risen normally under the pressure of war and post-war demand, but with government's purposeful buying they have gone to the astral heights where they now abide.

"The housewive's boycott cannot affect the price of corn. . . . Meat cannot come down very much until grain prices come down. If the boycott were universally maintained, meat prices would first come down so that the supply on hand could be disposed of—perhaps at a loss—but then meat would disappear from the markets. The meat producers could not raise cheap animals on corn at government-supported prices."

What this goes to prove is that the housewives are looking at the meat price problem through the wrong end of the telescope—they are confusing cause with effect. The producer, the packer, the butcher and everyone else involved in bringing meat to the consumer has to pay today's inflated prices, largely caused by government itself, and meat has to sell at a figure which reflects them. The boycott, if it were successful, would be much like price control—it would reduce meat production, cause a widespread shortage, and stimulate the black market.

Petroleum output is setting records. Last week a daily average of 5,520,000 barrels of oil were produced, topping the previous all-time weekly high by nearly 16,000 barrels.

Dorothy Jean Smith Becomes Bride of Billy C. Smith in Impressive Early Evening Service

MRS. BILLY C. SMITH

Before a robed choir and baskets of flowers on the altar, marriage vows were read for Miss Jean Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Smith of Canyon, and Billy C. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Smith of Goodnight, Saturday, Sept. 11, at 5:30 o'clock, at the Presbyterian church. Rev. Ben E. Bollman, pastor, read the double ring service which followed the Presbyterian church service as much as possible. Guests were handed programs resembling church programs, on which were printed the wedding particulars. Members of the choir were Mr. Glenn Truax, Miss Ada Clark, Mrs. J. D. Barker, Mrs. Dan Sanders, Mrs. Al Kieselbach, Mrs. L. H. Owens, Mrs. Mary Sliger, Mr. Dan Sanders, Mr. T. H. Thompson, Mr. Bill Davis, Mr. H. S. Strain, Mr. Wes Kleinschmidt, and Dr. A. K. Knott.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Lee Foster, organist played "Evening Prayer" by Humperdinck. The choir sang "My Heart Sings at Twilight" by Charlotte Ingham Word which was composed especially for the bride and bridegroom and "At Eventide" and "Come My Beloved" also by Charlotte Ingham Word. As the candles were being lighted by Miss Ellen Sanders, Mrs. Foster played Tschaikowsky's "Andante Cantabile." She was assisted at the piano by Mrs. J. D. Barker. As a soft background for the exchange of vows, the choir sang Mallote's "Lord's Prayer." Mrs. Pioneer Fisher, aunt of the bride, played the traditional wedding marches which she also played at the wedding of the bride's mother.

Attending the bride as matron-of-honor was Mrs. Darrell Bock of Portales, N. M. Her long black skirt of crepe was topped with a white silk lace blouse and she carried a colonial nosegay of assorted flowers with blue satin streamers. Bridesmade Ellen Sanders of Canyon, was gowned in lime green organdy and her colonial nosegay had pink satin streamers.

Charles Smith was his brother's best man, and groomsman was Luther Fisher of Dallas, cousin of the bride. Ushers were Bill Avent Smith, brother of the bride, Richard Sanders and Jim Russell.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride made a lovely picture in an ice blue brocaded satin gown, fashioned with fitted bodice and brocaded lace peplum. Her veil of illusion fell from a coronet of bromits. Her bridal bouquet was a colcaded lace and she wore a white lace onial nosegay of white lily of the valley surrounded by assorted colored flowers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Smith chose a black crepe dress accented with brilliant clips, a black all feather hat, and black accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Mrs. C. A. Smith, mother of the bridegroom also wore a black crepe dress and grey accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for the couple in the basement of the church. Soft musical background during the reception was played by Mrs. Ples Harper. Those in the houseparty were Miss Eleanor Fisher of Dallas, aunt of the bride, Mrs. Joe Miles, Estes Park, Colorado; Mrs. Byron Helmer, Borger, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. T. V. Reeves, Miss Novella Goodman, Miss Jean Moore and Miss Ruth Lowes all of Canyon.

For traveling the bride wore a grey corduroy suit with green suede accessories.

Mrs. Smith was a senior student at West Texas State College where she was a member of Alpha Psi Omega, national honorary dramatic fraternity, and has been very active in dramatic production at West Texas State for the past three years. She was also a member of the national band fraternity, and a member of the Buffalo Band.

The bridegroom spent three years overseas with the Seabees and has attended Colorado A. & M., and West Texas State. He is now a student at New Mexico A. & M. in Las Cruces where the couple will make their home and where Mrs. Smith is teaching first grade.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. Willard Edgett, Lubbock; Miss Hellen Adgett, Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Budke and Marilyn Sue, Mrs. Faye Robinson, and Mrs. Hazel Miser all of Amarillo; Mrs. Joe Mills, Estes Park, Colorado; Mr. Jno. A. Fisher of Dallas, grandfather of the bride; Miss Eleanor Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Pioneer Fisher, Luther Fisher, all of Dallas; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, Misses Elizabeth, Sue and Lou Smith, Jimmy Smith, all of Goodnight; Mr. and Mrs. Byron Helmer of Borger; Mr. and Mrs. Millard Word of Ashtola; and Mrs. A. E. Hunt, of Portales, New Mexico.

DEMONSTRATION CLUB MEETS FOR PROGRAM

Members of the Central Home Demonstration Club were entertained by Mrs. George Barker in her country home, Sept. 10. Mrs. S. R. Hood, president, conducted the business session, when the Council report was given by Mrs. Barker. The club voted to participate in the food shower for Boys Ranch and in the Council flower show, Oct. 2.

Handicraft Day, Sept. 17, at the new high school cafeteria was announced, and the topic for next year's study, "Yard Improvement, Canning and Preserving; Stressing Frozen Foods," was given.

For the program Mrs. Hugh Kelso presented interesting facts on, "Curtains, Draperies and Slip Covers," and Mrs. Charles Wilkinson discussed, "Scatter Rugs and Accessories." Mrs. Hood very capably demonstrated bed making.

Mrs. Barker, Mrs. T. A. Kluck and Mrs. Levi Cole were named as the nominating committee.

Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served to Mrs. S. R. Hood, Mrs. Hugh Kelso, Mrs. Charles Wilkinson, Mrs. Velton Sorgee, Mrs. Hugh Griener, Mrs. W. L. Rice, Mrs. S. L. Terry, Mrs. T. A. Kluck, Mrs. Fred Marshall, Mrs. Maude Walters, Barbara Dutton, Joyce Barker, Mark and Mike Kluck.

Drastic export supervision by the Commerce Department has cut shipment of goods to the Soviet Union to an annual rate of $50 million—below $50,000 in June and July. Tight controls will be continued to keep back goods of potential military value and to support U.S. foreign policy.

Railroads Are a Little More Than An Industry

The railroads hold a special place in the imagination of the American people. The whole history of this continent is bound up in the steel rails that span it in all directions.

The iron horse brought civilization to great areas and made possible our social and economic unification.

To millions of small boys, their first trip on a railroad train was a great adventure. And few of us are not stirred by the lonely cry of a locomotive whistle in the night. To the people in little towns and on isolated farms the railroad is the connecting link with the great cities, with the seacoasts, and with lands beyond our own borders. It is the railroad that takes our crops to market, and brings us in return the produce of other regions. It is the railroad that can always be depended upon to do whatever job is given it—and to do it with swift efficiency.

No history of the nation can fail to give the railroads a brilliant chapter, and to tell the colorful story of how the lines were built, in the face of almost incredible obstacles, across the plains and deserts and mountains. Then, as time moved on, it was the railroads that made our industrial and agricultural development possible. Finally, when the country became involved in the great tragedy of war, it was the railroads that contributed enormously to the ultimate victory.

The railroads are more than an industry, more than a vast commercial undertaking. They are part and parcel of the American spirit.

Premier Stalin is finding difficulties in Poland before even he manages to clear up his troubles with Marshal Tito in Yugoslavia. Hilary Minc, boss of Polish economic recovery, shows signs of defying Comization. He is saying openly that things have to be done differently in Poland, regardless of what the Cominform thinks. That's the kind of talk that got Tito into trouble.

"There I was," the old prospector was telling his visitors from down east, "the grizzly bear down in the canyon behind a tree. The only way I could hit him was to ricochet a bullet off this high canyon wall on my right." He described it with an up-and-down motion of his hand. "A one-rail shot, you understand."

He paused to consider the degree of their interest, seemed satisfied, then went on.

"Well, I had gauged my windage, calculated the lead of the barrel and the rate of twist, the hardness of the bullet and the angle of yaw it would have after being smacked out of shape against the canyon wall, and I judged my chances were 60-40 that I would get my bear. A one-rail bank. A controlled ricochet. So I fired."

There was a silence. Then one of his listeners asker rather timidly:

"Did you hit him!"

"No," the old man answered. "I missed the wall."

Top-ranking Republican congressmen have warned the State Department that Congress will appropriate no more money for European recovery unless the beneficiary nations can prove real progress in self-help and mutual assistance at the next appropriation hearings, to begin in December. To this end, ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman has ordered his financial experts to keep House Appropriations Committee Chairman John Taber completely informed as to how every nickel is being spent and the results of spending.

Young Republican Senators are angling for places in the important Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Two vacancies on this Committee are being created by the retirement of Senators Capper of Kansas and White of Maine. If Senator Wiley accepts a judicial appointment, a third vacancy will be created.

Admiral Richard Conolly, one of the Navy's three top fleet commanders, was on hand for more than a courtesy call when U.S. ships visited India recently. The Navy really wanted a close-up study of conditions in the Indian Ocean because of Communist disorders in Malaya and Burma.

Democratic Party leaders are increasingly worried over the lack of large campaign contributions. They now are preparing a nation-wide campaign to organize Truman-Barkeley clubs to get small contributions from housewives and wage earners.

Arabia? Where There Is Vast Oil Development

It's a long way to Arabia, and relatively few Americans have ever been there. But American capital and productive genius are taking the lead in developing Arabia's most essential resource—oil.

As everyone knows, oil is the key to world rehabilitation and stability. The American standard of living in itself is largely based on the widespread use of petroleum for a multitude of jobs. Until now, the American domestic oil industry has been able to meet our own great needs and to supply requirements of other countries. But demand has outrun all expectations. Last year, for instance, though the industry did a remarkably fine job in increasing production, our consumption was just about equal to the supply. In the future, it is probable that we will import a part of our own oil. And Europe will not be able to depend upon this hemisphere for its oil.

That is why a number of American oil companies have pioneered in Arabia. The results so far have been spectacular. Although the development is still in an early stage, it has been found that the Middle East's recoverable reserves are larger than those of the Western hemisphere. By 1951, it is expected that the region will produce 1,620,000 barrels of oil a day. The job is an enormous one—the gap between crude oil in the ground and finished products in the hands of users can be bridged only by wells, tanks, pipelines, refineries and ships. But the outlook is that it will be finished on schedule, unless unavoidable delays are caused by material shortages. Once again, Americans are captaining a great industrial team whose work will be of lasting benefit to the entire world.

An acute shortage of grain storage space may soon force a break in high grain prices, despite the Government support program. Farmers, holding more than a billion bushels of corn, cannot collect Government loans until their grains are warehoused; so they may unload their surpluses at prices ranging from 15c to 25c less than the Government support price of $1.45 a bushel.

The Federal Communications Commission has not abandoned its struggle to kill give-away radio shows. Minus Congressional authority to outlaw prize-giving quiz shows, the FCC now plans to write new rules making radio stations (control over which is almost unlimited) guilty of malconduct——lottery-running—if they broadcast give-away shows.

High State Department officials last week privately stated that the Moscow negotiations over the Berlin question will net absolutely nothing. This conviction, plus the impending failure of the Berlin air lift, now leaves the U. S. only one face-saving course: throw the whole question into the United Nations, which can, if it deems the Berlin controversy "a menace ot peace," order the withdrawal of ALL occupying forces from the German capital.

Mr. Truman is going to have a hard time pushing the cost-of-living issue in the campaign. While he talks against high prices, his Department of Agriculture is obliged to keep food price levels from falling below support-price levels. The support prices for farm products go up automatically as prices rise for industrial goods.

Attorney General Tom Clark is expected to announce a new antitrust campaign about the time that the election campaign reaches its peak. A hush-hush meeting of Justice Department field officers has been called for September 24 and 25, when new antitrust procedures are to be presented.

Most important factors in keeping rubber consumption high: more use of rubber-tired vehicles for freight and farming; more and larger tires on trucks, busses and farm service vehicles; increase in mileage per passenger car on the road; industry's shift to rubber conveyor belts for handling materials of all kinds from cereals to iron ore.

Upstart of the fuel industry, bottled protane and butane gas, has grown fast but demand has grown faster. Estimated production this year: more than 2 billion gallons—20 times that of 12 years ago. Biggest users: 750,000 trailer homes; railroads, for diners and air conditioning motors; farmers, for cooking, sterilizing and as fuel for tractors.

More retail jewelers will be gem experts. The Diamond Council of America will offer two correspondence courses prepared by a University of Pennsylvania professor. The Gemological Institute of America, Los Angeles, has pioneered this type of education; several hundred members already are listed as "Certified Gemologists" and "Registered Jewelers."

Specialist Predicts Toes Will Disappear

WASHINGTON.—A foot specialist predicts that 10,000 years from now nobody will suffer from ingrown toenails.

The reason is simple. By 11,948 A. D., people will have practically no toes. Hence, no toenails.

Dr. William J. Stickel, executive secretary of the National Association of Chiropodists, said:

"Feet, as we know them today, are on their way out."

At the end of 10,000 years, he says, the little toe will be completely gone. The other toes will be so retarded that the foot will look more like a hoof.

Shoes—and what some comic has laughingly called progress—are to blame.

As long as man used his toes to clamber up a tree, as long as he walked barefoot through the mud and let it squiggle up between his toes, there was some point in being a toe. And toes were happy.

And then, shoes. Toes were caged. Discontented, they allowed nails to grow in and bunions to grow out.

Go to any beach and try to get to the foot of the problem.

For every 1,000 lovely faces, or figures, or nicely shaped ears, it's difficult to locate one pair of decent feet.

Dr. Sticker aired his views in connection with National Foot Health week.

"I have studied the problem carefully," he said, "and have decided there is nothing rational the chiropodist can do to arrest evolution."

Motorist, 91, Stands on Head to Prove He's Healthy

SALT LAKE CITY.—A 91-year-old motorist here thinks he's in better health than most younger drivers. He has one convincing argument.

Mads M. Christensen stands on his head to silence skeptics.

The enthusiastic motorist drives a 1923 model car. "I'll be dagnabbed if I would want to go back to the old horse-and-buggy days," he smiles. He bought the car 23 years ago.

Christensen credits his health to eating only two meals a day, growing a beard and not smoking or drinking. He thinks men would be healthier if they wouldn't shave.

Thirteen-Year-Old Mystery Still Puzzles Sheriffs

EL PASO, TEX. — Somewhere in the eroded butte country of eastern New Mexico there are the bones of four people—two men and two women who disappeared 13 years ago while on a trip to the West coast.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lorius of East St. Louis, Ill., and their traveling companions, Mr. and Mrs. George Hebere of DeQuoin, Ill., spent the night of May 21, 1935, in Vaughn, N. M. They apparently reached Albuquerque, N. M., where postcards bearing their handwriting were mailed the next day.

There the trail ended. The Lorius' 1931 model automobile gave authorities their only clew. A nervous young man with a prominent adams apple abandoned the car in Dallas after passing through El Paso. He left a trail of Lorius' travelers' checks before he disappeared in Dallas.

Texas and New Mexico sheriffs in this sparsely populated country along the Mexican border never have doubted that the party was murdered. Murder, however, can't be proved until the body is found and there has never been a trace of the Illinois couples.

Radio Device Helps Baby Sitter Care for Children

SHANKS VALLEY, N. Y.—A radio baby sitter for student veterans living here has been put into operation by Maj. J. L. Wood of Seattle.

It enables one baby sitter to take care of a number of children in their own homes on such occasions as community dances.

Maj. Wood is living here with his wife and two children while studying at Teachers' College. Before he entered the army he was in commercial radio.

His procedure is to place a microphone near the crib of each baby to be watched and connect it to an amplifier in his own home.

Each amplifier is labeled with the name of the baby being watched. In each home he also places an alarm clock near the baby so that if its ticking ceases the baby sitter will know that the radio device is no longer working.

The microphone is so sensitive that it will even transmit the sound of the child's breathing.

Thief Apologizes, Returns Loot; Identity Kept Secret

TACOMA, WASH.—Police were puzzled about whether or not to continue search for a bandit who held up and robbed an ice cream store of $90 here, then, hours later, changed his mind and returned the money.

Mrs. Edyth Eaton, victim of the robbery, told officers the robber called her up and apologized for taking the money. She said she then urged him to return it saying she would not reveal his identity to police. He returned the money and she kept her promise.

Oldham-Slaughter Vows Exchanged In Pretty Double Ring Ceremony

MRS. GEORGE WILLIAM SLAUGHTER, III

In a double ring ceremony Saturday evening in the sanctuary of the First Presbyterian Church in Amarillo, Marielle Oldham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Oldham, 1519 Crockett, Amarillo, became the bride of Dr. George William Slaughter, III, of Wichita Falls, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Slaughter, Jr., of Center.

The vows were exchanged before a background of candles banked with palms and accented with cascades of white gladioli tied with white satin. The edge of the altar was outlined with large sprays of fern, and the central aisle was marked with bouquets of white gladioli and huckleberry, tied with white satin and centered with tall single tapers.

Mrs. Howard Dill, organist, prefaced the ceremony with nuptial selections including "Traumeri," "Ich Libe Dich," "Liebestraum," "Yours Is My Heart Alone" and "Through the Years." Dr. Francis W. Prichard, pastor, officiated.

Mrs. Talbot Rain of Dallas was matron-of-honor. Her gown was of beige faille with long fitted bodice and full skirt. The deep yoke of the dress and her halo were of beige lace. She carried a cascade of yellow throated flame gladioli tied with nile green satin.

Dr. Rex Howard of Fort Worth was best man. Tom W. Metz, Dr. Jack I. Womack, Dr. H. G. Love, Jr., Frank K. Chinn, all of Dallas, Cade Downs of San Augustine, and H. R. Julton, Jr. of Canyon were ushers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Oldham chose a floor length dress of aqua crepe with orchid accessories. Her corsage was a purple orchid. Mrs. Slaughter, mother of the bridegroom, wore a dress of lime crepe with fawn colored accessories. Her corsage was of brown orchids.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an imported white silk satin gown with close-fitting bodice and long sleeves ending in points over the hands. The skirt was circular, ending in a chapel train. The yoke of the dress and the halo were of imported rose point lace, the design of the lace accented with iridescent sequins and the three tiered veil was of bridal illusion. Her bouquet was a white orchid surrounded with gardenias and showers of stephanotis cascaded with three strands of pearls.

A reception was given in the home of the bride's parents. The table was centered with white roses and tapers. Punch was served by Mrs. Ed H. Bagot. The tiered wedding cake, decorated with white roses, was served by Mrs. Frank K. Chinn of Dallas. Miss Frances Stripling of Dallas presided at the guest book. Other members of the house party were Mrs. Jack Womack of Dallas, Miss Ellen Sanders, Miss Dorothy McReynolds, Miss Marion McReynolds and Miss Debra McDonald of Canyon.

For a wedding trip to Santa Fe, N. M., the bride wore a forest green suit with beaded antique ivory satin blouse and black accessories. She wore a white orchid corsage.

The couple will be at home in Wichita Falls.

Mrs. Slaughter was graduated from the University of Texas at Austin. Mr. Slaughter attended the University of Texas and was graduated from Southwestern Medical College. He is a member of Phi Chi, medical fraternity.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. John Thomson and Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Butts of San Augustine, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Bolton of Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Joe B. Phillips and Miss Mary Jo Phillips of Brownsville, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dabney of Harlingen, Mr and Mrs. J. W. McCutchen of Wichita Falls, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Hudson of Plainview, and Mr. Talbot Rains of Dallas.

MISS VIRGIE HAINES IS HONORED WITH SUPPER

DON'T PULL DOWN THE HOUSE

". . . According to the balderdash talked by the B. B. C. propagandists, democracy means all rights and no duties, freedom to lie in bed . . . on Sunday mornings without having to earn that leisure by six days' previous hard work. According to the hermaphrodites of the microphone, all the practices and customs of the past are reactionary and rotten and all the blueprints for the future are progressive and sound. . . . Even if there have been abuses in the past, the fact of their existence does not incline me to believe that the habits and conventions wrought painfully out of centuries of human experience are in themselves wrong and that their abolition will necessarily lead men to the good and beautiful life, which is the only means whereby civilization can be saved. . . . Reforms by all means, but reform from within and not from without. Don't pull down the whole house because the mattress on your bed is uncomfortable."—A remark by one of the principal characters in the novel, Vespers in Vienna by Bruce Marshall.

The world's three-ring circus is giving John Q. Public a crick in the neck—trying to watch Moscow, Washington and Dick Tracy all at the same time.

We wonder if they had an uncovered dish supper at the recent nudist convention?

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek put his currency reform plan into effect so suddenly because plans for the program had leaked prematurely. Some speculators were planning to make a killing on advance information.

Motorists Urged To Protect Children in School Opening

Governor Beauford Jester has proclaimed September as "Child Safety Month" to focus attention on the need for protecting children from traffic accidents as they start back to school.

A statewide program reaching into every community that has an American Legion Post is being sponsored jointly by the Legion and the Texas Safety Association.

Motorists are being urged to "watch out for the kids—give them a brake." Parents are encouraged to help teach safe habits to youngsters. The kids themselves are reminded not to play in the street or road and always to look before crossing a thoroughfare.

Governor Jester in his proclamation pointed out that 218 children below the age of 14 were killed in Texas traffic accidents last year, while 1826 boys and girls were injured.

Ferdinand Eberstadt is being mentioned increasingly as a likely member of a Dewey Cabinet. Mr. Eberstadt held several top production jobs in the Government during the war and has been active since the war in military planning and procurement.
